

"A HIDDEN MOTIVE" DEFENSE PLEA IN WILLIAMS TRIAL

Bucks County Farmer Goes
On Trial for Killing
Brother-in-Law

SENTENCED TO DIE

Obtained New Trial on The Grounds of "The Hidden Motive"

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(INS)—With "a hidden motive" as the bulwark of his defense, Harold Williams, 26-year-old Bucks county farmer, again went on trial for the sister and brother murder of William Prophet. The defendant's sister, Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, is serving a life sentence for plotting the death of her husband.

Williams was sentenced to die in the electric chair but obtained a new trial on the grounds that testimony concerning the "hidden motive" was not allowed.

"The evidence to be offered at this new trial has never before been disclosed," said Samuel Moyderman, defense counsel.

The star witness for the defense will be the first wife of Prophet, Mrs. Elizabeth Curvan, of Wildwood, N. J.

She is a new figure in the case and emerged out of an obscurity of 18 years because she "feels sorry for this young man."

"I feel, in fairness, that I must tell the truth about the man who was my husband," said Mrs. Curvan.

Prophet and she were married in Doylestown in 1912. After six months, the first Mrs. Prophet obtained a divorce. Mrs. Curvan is now 45 and the mother of three children.

Williams listened to his sister Grace tell of her unhappy life then killed her husband, the defense maintains, because he was a devoted brother.

The prosecution claims that sister and brother plotted the murder in order to get the insurance money of the victim. Grace paid Harold $500 for the crime which was intended to look like a burglary, police charge.

Prophet was beaten and shot to death in his bed beside his wife, both the defendants confessed, after a grilling.

The defense, in addition to the "hidden motive" will introduce a plea of insanity. Many leading psychiatrists will be called to the witness stand in an attempt to prove that Williams has the mentality of a boy of 12. It will be shown that the father of Harold and Grace committed suicide, defense counsel said.

Judge "hard-boiled" Harry McDevitt, noted for his severity of sentences, will preside at the second trial of Williams.

The life of Judge McDevitt has been threatened by radicals for the two-year sentence he imposed on an anti-fascist who leaped in the running-board of Dino Grandi's automobile, Italian Foreign Minister, when the latter recently visited Philadelphia.

Several hundred persons who appeared early in an attempt to gain entrance to the court room were turned away by police. Admission was by card only. William Connelly, newly-appointed chief of county detectives, and a number of his men, also were on hand to aid the bluecoats in controlling the large crowd of morbid curiosity-seekers.

Stephensons Entertain In Honor of Their Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Stephenson, Jefferson avenue, entertained a number of young folks Saturday evening, in honor of their daughter, Miss Emma Stephenson. The affair given was a farewell party to Miss Stephenson, who will enter the Episcopal Hospital, Philadelphia, in February, where she will study to be a nurse.

The party was held at the Anchor Yacht Club, and a delightful evening was spent playing games, singing and dancing. The club room was attractively decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being red and white. Crepe paper streamers gracefully hung from the four corners to the center of the room, while clusters of balloons were seen. The lights were covered with paper shades, giving a soft glow. Refreshments were served. A vase filled with various colored balloons, formed the centerpiece on the table. Favors were paper hats.

Those present: Mary Reese, Elizabeth Cummings, Elyoneta and Margaret Breese, Eleanor Walter, Elizabeth Mayberry, Dorothy Dugan, Margaret Allen, Mrs. Rose Mayberry, Mrs. Carrie Breese, Mr. and Mrs. Granville Stephenson and daughters, Emma, Rose, Margaret and Evelyn, William Pye, John Gott, Russell Moore, Harold Turner, Arnold North, Bristol; Jane McCullion, Philadelphia; Jackson Bower, Croydon; John Wiggins, Torresdale; Robert Weissner and Walter Rutherford, Doylestown; Malcolm Lovett, Philadelphia.

DISMISS EMPLOYEES

Harrisburg, Jan. 25.—Four minor employees of the Board of Game Commissioners—the storm center of a controversy regarding the Board's administration—were dismissed again today. Dismissal of the men, after only a week of service since their return, was announced by Charles G. Stone, executive secretary, who himself has resigned because of the employees' reinstatement on orders from the Governor's office. Stone said the dismissal had been ordered by Adolph Uhlir, president of the board.

ARREST BANK ROBBER

Denver, Jan. 25.—George Adams, 24, was under arrest here today in connection with a $50,000 bank robbery in Danielsville, Pa., on November 13th. Adams was arrested at the request of the Pennsylvania State Police, but refused to comment on the robbery.

ROCKNE'S ESTATE

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 25.—According to an inventory to be filed in Superior Court here today, the net value of the personal estate of the late Knute R. Rockne, Notre Dame football coach who was killed in an airplane crash last March, is $26,608. The gross value of the estate is $40,510, with claims totalling $13,902.

BRITISH RELENT

Bombay, India, Jan. 25.—The British government today relented slightly in its attitude toward Mahatma Gandhi, imprisoned in the Yerovla jail at Poona, by announcing the nationalist leader will be allowed a total of 20 minutes' conversation per week with relatives and non-political friends. Heretofore, kept in strict confinement, although allowed minor liberties, the aged Gandhi also may now read one pro-governmental and one pro-nationalist newspaper each day.

PERKASIE FIRE LOSSES HELD TO $2,000 IN 1931

One Blaze Alone Contributed
$1,800; Four Blazes
in Borough

FIREMEN OUT 24 TIMES

Fire losses in Perkaskie were held down to $2,000, during 1931, with one blaze alone contributing $1,800 to that total, according to the annual fire loss report compiled by Chief William O. Texter, of the Perkaskie volunteers.

The one serious fire took place at the home of Miss Maggie Rosenberger, on North Seventh street, last February. The loss was severe, and only $200 was lost in the remaining fires. Only three other blazes occurred within the borough limits.

A $125 fire occurred on New Year's Day of 1931, when the interior of Pinnel's restaurant was damaged. Prompt work on the part of the fire company prevented a serious fire.

Damage was estimated at $75 when the Peter L. Moyer home in South Perkaskie, was threatened, and the firemen saved the house from further damage, on their arrival.

The firemen were called out twenty times during the year to out-of-town fires, seven of which were grass blazes. Only one false alarm was sounded.

Six barns were destroyed in the vicinity of Perkaskie, two dwellings, a garage, and a chicken house. Other calls were for negligible blazes, which the firemen prevented from becoming serious by prompt action.

Paul K. Thomas Is Given Verdict, $444

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 25.—A jury on Thursday awarded Paul K. Thomas, of Lambertville, N. J., a verdict for $444.19 in a suit against the Penn Shale Brick Company, of New Hope and New York. The case was tried before Judge Calvin S. Boyer. The amount of the suit was for commissions on the sale of bricks.

In the case of Estella J. Snyder against Fred Heinberger, a verdict was awarded the plaintiff in the sum of $302.65. The case was tried before Hiram H. Keller.

The last case for trial at the present term of civil court was called Friday by Judge Boyer. It is the case of William K. Fretz, of Hedminster, against George Bakeoven, of near Ottsville, an appeal from the decision of a justice of the peace.

It was announced that Judge Samuel E. Hull, of Stroudsburg, will be in court tomorrow to hear argument in the Hiltown school directors' case in which the directors were charged with malfeasance in office.

Plane That Killed Brothers

This is the twisted wreckage of the monoplane in which two brothers, Lieutenant Francis X. Kelly (left inset) and Edward Kelly (right), sons of Arthur Kelly, millionaire produce dealer of New York, plunged to death into the East River off Clason Pt., Bronx, while on a practice spin. Francis, 24, an accomplished pilot, being an Army reserve flier, is believed to have been giving his brother a flying lesson when tragedy occurred. They had just taken off from North Beach Airport, L. I., when the plane crashed into the river.

TOWNSHIP ASSOCIATION TO RELIEVE DISTRESS

Will Welcome Constructive
Criticisms and Suggestions

WORKERS ARE ACTIVE

Organized relief in East Bristol Township is planned by those who are sponsoring "The East Bristol Township Relief Committee." Organization was perfected at a meeting recently held and officers chosen and committees named.

Officers:
Frank Volt, chairman; Charles F. Weller, secretary; Mrs. Thomas G. Hawkes, treasurer; Howard Hilgenford, financial secretary; Dr. W. A. Albertson Haines, executive chairman.

An active executive committee has been named consisting of approximately 30 members, several from each district, to carry out an organized relief program, which will tend to eliminate duplication of effort.

In this manner it is hoped to provide a more satisfactory distribution of such necessities as food, fuel, medical aid, and clothing.

A statement issued following the organization meeting reads as follows:

"There is little need to enlarge upon or stress the unemployment situation and its effect upon the community.

"Temporary relief measures already organized have done admirable work and many individual efforts have taken care of single families in a most commendable manner.

"This mild weather thus far has permitted certain work to be made available and so prevented much hardship; however, a real cold spell will cause these jobs to stop with consequent disaster.

"It is highly necessary that the entire committee have confidence in this venture and feel their responsibility to cooperate in whatever manner they possibly can—whether it be to supply necessities, information, assistance or to provide work.

"Suggestions and criticisms are heartily invited in this attempt to help.

"Have you a job open? Can you provide odd work? Can you donate clothes, food, fuel, money? Do you need a job? Are you in distress?

"Notify any of the officers, or any of the executive committee listed below:

"Thomas Hawkes, Albert Dowden, Joe Carroll, John Moyer, Leo Lynn, Howard Carter, Parke Wetherill, Jack Evans, R. Stackhouse, Otto Schneider, H. Larzelere, E. Molloy, J. Edelman, William Rockhill, Andrew McArthur, Ralph Linck, Ted. McKeggie, Joe Schofield, Stewart Lake, William Grace, C. D. Koch.

Mrs. M. Scott, Mrs. F. Garrettsen, Mrs. T. Libsey, Mrs. H. Banes, Mrs. H. Schoemaker, Mrs. F. Gould, Mrs. Lillie Wilson, Robert R. Pearson.

"Authorized collector will issue receipts bearing the stamp of the committee and the signature of the collector."

MRS. APPLETON'S PARTY

Mrs. Ida Appleton, Radcliffe street, was surprised Thursday evening at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Appleton, Walnut street, when a number of friends gathered to celebrate her birthday anniversary. Pinocchio was played there being three tables of players arranged. Prizes were given to Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Appleton, Mrs. Warren Thompson. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Appleton received many gifts.

GIRL CHORUSES TO BE FEATURE OF COMEDY

25 Have Been Chosen To Participate in The Show

FOR CROYDON FIREMEN

About 25 girls will take part in the girls' choruses of the modern college comedy, "The College Flapper," to be staged by the Croydon Fire Company Thursday and Friday, January 25th and 26th.

These girls are to be specially costumed for special choruses and will add a great deal of life, beauty and color to the show. Some of the special choruses are "The Collegiate Chorus," the "Breezing Along Sailor Chorus," the "Milkmaid Chorus," and "Out in the New-Mown Hay," in their special costumes of bright colors which are very pretty. The steps are clever, the tunes catchy and the singing exceptional. Following are the girls who have been chosen to take part in these choruses: Beatrice Leitz, Ruth Collins, Mary Anna Mehner, Florence Razler, Doris Crosey, Dorothy Girard, June Reitenbaugh, Clara Hopkins, Marion Kreener, Florence Laucher, Claire Fugazzi, Ethel Bowen, Naomi Einzel, Katherine Moran, Katherine Razler, Madeline Foerst and Edith Springer.

The baby pageant is one of the unique features of the college show, "The College Flapper." About one hundred youngsters in the local community have been chosen to take part. This certain raiser is led by Mrs. Fred Tochterman, a special dramatic reader and the youngsters are bound to be one of the big attractions of the show. Never before has such an array of children been used in any kind of a production. It is unique and attractive. Throughout the country where the show has been staged the baby pageant has been one of the main features. You will want to see "College Flapper" for the sake of seeing the baby pageant if for no other reason.

FLOOD WATERS SPREAD DAMAGE

New Orleans, Jan. 25.—Flood waters raced over widely scattered sections of the South today, spreading destruction in four States. At least one death was attributed to the flood in Arkansas where virtually every river and stream was rising under the impetus of heavy rain. The casualty was believed to be J. H. Scoggin, a timber worker who disappeared and was thought to have drowned in the swollen Ouachita River.

"MORE THINGS ARE WROUGHT BY PRAYER THAN THIS WORLD DREAMS OF"

By "The Stroller"
Along the lonely stretches of the Amazon and its tributaries there is a prayer waiting—a gigantic task that a prayerful young man and his wife will in the eyes of the world face alone—but which in reality these two missionaries of the Gospel of the Christ will face with their Hope and Strength, God.

The work which Rev. and Mrs. Philip Pent, young missionaries, now in South Langhorne, started in the wilds of South America several years ago is commencing to bear fruit; they are anxious to return. They have three young children, the youngest but six months of age. But the Pents have no fears for the future or their mission. In their own words their task is "God's Promises"; their check book, Philippians 4:19—"But my God shall supply all your needs according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

CHARITABLE BEQUESTS MADE BY H. M. KRAMER

Deceased Leaves Sellersville
Hospital $1,000; Homes
Benefit

OTHER WILLS PROBATED

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 25.—Charitable bequests to a hospital and two other institutions, one an orphan's home and the other a home for the aged, were included in the will of the late Henry M. Kramer, who died at his home in Perkaskie on December 31. It was learned after his will was ordered probated in the Register of Wills' office, here.

Grand View Hospital, Sellersville, will receive the sum of $1,000, while the Eastern Mennonite Home, Souderton, and Germantown Lutheran Orphan's Home, will each receive a gift of $1,000, after the death of Samuel Linford Kramer, who was bequeathed a trust fund of $10,000 in the Bucks County Trust Company, Doylestown, which was named as the executor of the estate.

A former Sellersville resident, Annie Everhart Kern, who died at Ruth's Convalescent Home, Bally, bequeathed the sum of $100 to an orphan's home at Womelsdorf, and the same amount to "Home and Foreign Missions." Her estate was estimated at close to $2,000.

Mrs. Kern, who named a niece, Maggie Althouse, as executor, named as the rest of her heirs a sister, Mary, S. Michley, a brother, Charles M. Althouse and her niece, Maggie Althouse.

She also bequeathed the sum of $100 to the Sellersville Cemetery Company for the purpose of taking permanent care of their graves.

Other wills filed for probate were those of Eli Kallenale, of Perkaskie, who died at Mt. Holly, N. J., letters to William Kallenale, $5,000; Stewart Steele, of Newtown, letters to Bristol Trust Company, $6250; Mary T. La Rue, of Bristol, letters to Bristol Trust Company, $3100;

Hannah Elizabeth Carver, of Langhorne, letters, to Amos W. Carver, $1500; Lillie B. Cooper, of Middletown, letters to Horace Cooper, $50; Isabella C. Downs, of Bristol, letters to Hugh A. Dugan, $3,000; John L. Ebert, of New Britain, letters to Lloyd Keller, $8,000; Frank M. Walker, Lower Makefield township, letters to Margaret Walker.

Henry A. Bishop was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Jacob B. Bishop, Hultown, and the Doylestown Trust Company was granted letters of administration in the estate of the late Harvey Wiggins.

Playlet and Readings Enjoyed by Yardley Club

YARDLEY, Jan. 25.—The Yardley Civic Club held its social meeting in the club rooms Friday at which time the vice-president, Mrs. Houghton Smith, presided. The program was opened by a piano solo by Mrs. Donald Clemens, and then Mrs. George C. Duerr, gave two readings, "A Black Blue Grass Widow" and "Minnie at the Skating Rink."

This was followed by a playlet produced under the direction of the dramatic committee which includes: Mrs. William M. Welch, Mrs. Algernon S. Cadwallader, and Mrs. Robert C. Belleville, 2nd. The playlet, "Spreading the News," included the following cast: Mrs. Lara Ross, Mrs. A. E. Brindley, Mrs. Fred W. Beans, Mrs. A. J. Cadwallader, Mrs. Charles P. Cook, Mrs. B. Warner Shay, Mrs. Fred G. Satterthwaite, and Miss Helen W. Leedom.

The affair was staged before a large audience of members, and visitors.

The February business meeting of the club will be held in St. Andrew's parish house, at which time they will enjoy a covered luncheon, under the care of the program committee, which includes: Mrs. William C. Beener, Mrs. Fred W. Beans, Mrs. A. J. Cadwallader, Mrs. H. Stanley Worthington and Mrs. Harvey Funk.

NUMEROUS DEATHS OCCUR HERE OVER LAST WEEK-END

Jacob M. Winder Dies at His Home in Bristol
Township

MISS JACKSON DEAD

Mrs. Matilda R. Doran Dies
After Several Months'
Illness

Jacob M. Winder died at his home in Bristol Township yesterday afternoon, after an extended illness. He is survived by his wife.

The deceased, a well-known resident of Bucks county, was a native of Bristol, being born here August 28, 1858, in a property which stood at Radcliffe and Walnut streets, where Dr. John J. Hargrave now resides.

Mr. Winder was the son of Isaac Winder and Mary Jane Hetherington. He was educated in the local public schools and also attended the Friends' Select School and Bryant and Statton Business College of Philadelphia.

The deceased was first employed by the D. Landreth Seed Company at their Bloomsdale farms and then later held positions with C. W. and J. Pierce, Rogers' Mill and Leedom's carpet mills.

Mr. Winder was a Democrat and was named postmaster here on April 1, 1895, under the Cleveland administration. After retiring from the postmaster's office he entered the grocery and meat business at Pond and Mill streets, where the haberdashery of A. W. Vandegrift is now located. He continued the grocery business for one year and then procured a wholesale liquor license.

In 1905 Mr. Winder entered horse racing as a pastime. He became owner of a number of notable horses but never drew a rein over any of them. He purchased his first racing horse from a catalogue as a driving horse for his wife. It was this horse, the famous Maggie Winder, which developed into a phenomenal racing filly.

Maggie Winder, a bay filly, by Oratorio, 2:13, was the most phenomenal racing filly of the season of 1909. In the first year of her career as a 3-year-old she established four world's records. She won four three-year-old races, a stake event and a purse in six starts. Her time was 2:06 1/4.

Maggie Winder died October 5, 1930, and was buried on the Winder farm. Her grave was decorated with an American flag and the owner of the horse which had brought him fame and fortune.

Mr. Winder also owned numerous other race horses of note, including: Hazel Kustner, 2:03 1/4; Margaret Spangler, 2:01 1/4; Windmere, 2:09 1/4; Maggie Chenault, 2:16; Hazel Chenault, 2:14; Good Time Peter, 2:14 1/4. All were sons and daughters of Maggie Winder, who was 25 years and six months old when she died. At one time Mr. Winder refused an offer of $23,000 for her.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 from the funeral home of the Harvey S. Rue Est., 314 Cedar street. The services will be in charge of the Rev. George M. Boswell and interment will be in St. James' churchyard. Elks will hold services at the Rue home Tuesday evening at eight o'clock.

Daniel Boyle, son of the late Daniel and Catherine Boyle, and a former resident of Bristol, died in Jersey City yesterday. The deceased was a native of Bristol and is survived by three nieces and a nephew.

The body will be brought here and funeral services will be held from the residence of a niece, 331 Buckley street, Wednesday morning at nine o'clock. There will be high mass in St. Mark's church at 10 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mark's churchyard under the direction of Murphy.

The funeral of Euclid Girrior, West Arieat, N. S., will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock from the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street. There will be high mass in St. Mark's Church at nine o'clock and interment will be in St. Mark's Cemetery.

The body of Girrior was washed through the pipe of a huge dredge engaged in deepening the channel of the Delaware River, off Eddington, on January 12th.

Girrior was a member of the crew of a dredge which was burned and sunk early on the morning of November 25, 1930, off Croydon, when an oil explosion, set the dredge afire and forced the other dozen members of the crew to walk the pipe line to safety in a biting cold wind. Although the body of Girrior was searched for it was never recovered until it was blown ashore through the pipe line of another dredge.

Mrs. Matilda R. Doran, wife of the late Thomas Doran, 619 Beaver street, died Saturday evening, after a several months' illness. She was the daughter of the late Dominick and Margaret Barrett.

AUTO DEATH TOLL

Too much optimism would be fatal in the case of the slight decrease in traffic fatalities reported for 1931. It should serve to redouble the efforts of the accident-prevention agencies rather than cause them to rest on their oars.

There were, it is estimated, 33,000 deaths in motor accidents in 1931, as compared with 32,750 in 1930, but when this is adjusted for the increase in population, the motor death rate to each 100,000 of population becomes 26.4 for 1931, as compared with 26.6 for 1930.

This two-tenths of one per cent decrease can be attributed to the thinning of traffic due to the depression and low motor vehicle production last year as easily as it can be attributed to accident-prevention campaigns and police vigilance. If the degree to which traffic fell off last year were known, it might develop that there were more fatalities per vehicle per mile. This possibility is supported by an analysis of the deaths on the basis of cars and trucks registered. Deaths to each 100,000 cars registered were 127.2 in 1931 and 123.5 in 1930. There were fewer fatalities in 1931 on the basis of gasoline consumed, which may be accounted for by the fact that the average motor vehicle, due to increased power and speed, consumed more gasoline per mile last year.

All in all the accident-prevention movements enjoy little reflected glory from the records for 1931. They will have to get their satisfaction out of the supposition that but for their good work the accident and fatality rates would have been much higher.

YOUTH HAS MORE TIME

In all ages idleness has been accounted by the wise as the parent of crime. The truth of this is more evident now than formerly because there is more idleness, especially among a certain type of young men.

American boys of two or three generations ago had home duties of some sort, tasks expected of them like bringing home the cows in the evening or doing the barn chores or helping in the garden. Vacation time found them indulging in innocent recreation in the woods and water and fields—fishing, hunting, swimming, outdoor games and sports. In these they expended their youthful energy and gained vitality and character thereby. They were mischievous, perhaps, for that has been a trait of adolescents since time began; but they had less incentive and temptation to viciousness and evil courses.

Indolence and weakness of character seems to be two of the common by-products of our changing mode of living. Young boys, especially in cities, have too much time lying heavily on their hands for their own good and for the safety of parked automobiles and other private property. They need such a safety valve as the chores that fell to their lot when every family had its own one-cow dairy, truck garden and horse.

SYNOPSIS

Ted Radcliffe is called to Verdi, a small village on the Mexican border, by Bob Harkness, his late father's friend. Radcliffe Senior had lost a fortune in Mexico years before. At a party given by Major Blount of the U. S. Army, Ted meets Paco Morales, ruling power of Mexico, and his beautiful niece, Adela. Morales tells how El Coyote, the mysterious bandit, killed a man about to reveal his hideaway. El Coyote steals from the rich, particularly Morales, and gives to the poor. Major Blount announces that the U. S. cavalry will join in the search for the bandit. Ted discovers that Bob had been in love with his mother and went West when she married his father.

CHAPTER VIII

Lost in thought Radcliffe still stood beside the girl. She watched his calm, steady eyes following Don Bob. Then again she saw his eyes twinkle. "If I come to your fiesta will you take me riding?" he asked. "Perhaps," the girl answered. "Yes, I'll take you riding, Ted Radcliffe—at least once." And she turned away.

A moment later Adela found herself at the table of her hostess.

"Out here in the great open spaces we never gossip," Aunt Clara began, while the cards were being dealt. "But I was just wondering in my arch fashion what must happen if two very big and very spoiled young men of different nationalities should fall in love with the same girl. It might result, you know, in some amazing fireworks."

Adela sighed. "You always think of the most interesting possibilities. But I wonder if your American giant could be touched by this thing called love. Are we playing contract, dear, or auction?"

"Contract. All except the major, and he's never been able to detect any difference." She smiled approvingly at her cards. "Two without."

For more than an hour the flick of cards and the deliberate bidding of the players were the only sounds. Twice on the path outside the slow, even tread of a sentry rose and died away. Then from out the silence horses' hoofs pounded on the hard gravel walk. They clattered sharply to a halt, and at a word of command spurs clanked on the porch steps just as the major opened the door. A cavalry sergeant stood before him, and after a word the two stepped into the night. Inside, the guests caught only a low rumble of the two men's voices, but all playing had ceased, and each one sat looking expectantly toward the door—all except Don Bob, whose impassive face still regarded the cards before him. At last the major entered, visibly the proud bearer of news. He took a step forward, cleared his throat, then turned and closed the door impressively just as Aunt Clara's warning voice broke the expectant silence.

"Better tell it, major. That shirt stud can't stand the strain much longer."

The old soldier tried to combine a smile of assurance to his guests with a withering glare of disapproval at his wife.

"Nothing important," he began, making his voice elaborately casual. "The boys captured a Mexican skulking around the corrales. He's wounded slightly, and I want Dr. Price to have a look at him in the office."

"How was he wounded?"

"They're not sure. When the Mexican cavalry raided El Coyote's camp one man was seen making off among the mesquite. The Mexicans fired on him, without effect. When the boys captured this chap he crumpled and they found a deep flesh wound in his leg. It's just possible that we've got one of El Coyote's men. So if it isn't asking too much, I'd like Señor Morales and Don Bob to take a look at him. We may learn something."

"I suppose," commented Aunt Clara grimly, "this is your idea of how to conduct a bridge game?"

"Dear, a soldier—"

"Don't finish it! I know. I'm going to set that speech to music some day." She turned to Dr. Price. "You'll find bandages in the desk near the table. Call me if there is anything else. And leave Ted Radcliffe here in case the rest of El Coyote's band drop in for a hand of contract."

Silently the four men walked out into the night, following the flagstone walk to where a clump of tamarisk flanked the low building which all Verdi knew as the major's office. The soldiers had halted inside with their prisoner, and as the major switched on the lights all eyes turned toward the captive, standing between two tall troopers. He was small, very dirty, and his eyes drooped either with pain or with weariness. The weight of his body rested on the left leg. Dr. Price stepped forward.

"Speak English?"

The Mexican shook his head. "They never speak English until they want something," the doctor muttered. Then, to Morales: "Please tell him to sit down there. Tell him I may hurt him a little. Bob, fill that basin, will you?"

Swiftly the doctor cut the cloth from about the wound and examined the discolored flesh. Once the man gave a sharp sigh of pain, and Bob put a lighted cigarette between his lips. In mute thanks the Mexican's heavy eyes were raised to the face of Don Bob, then lowered again.

"Anyone here ever seen him?" asked the major.

Morales and Don Bob regarded him closely.

"Never," said Morales at last. Don Bob shrugged his shoulders. "His face looks familiar, but one can't be sure. Will he talk?"

"The soldiers can't speak Spanish. Let's see what Morales can get out of him."

"Where do you come from?" began Morales in Spanish.

The captive made no reply.

"Answer me. Where are you from? What is your name?"

Again silence, and the flush on the major's face deepened.

"A few days in the guard-house may help him remember." Then to a soldier, "Search his pockets."

Quickly the contents of the peon's coat were spread on the table. A bag of tobacco, crumpled cigarette papers and matches, a bundle of rawhide strings—the soldier gave a quick whistle of surprise. "That bird's sure well-heeled." He held up two twenty-dollar gold pieces.

Instantly Morales pounced on them. "Dios y Maria!" He carried them nearer the light. "Almost I could swear to it."

"Swear what?" The major's voice was eager.

"That they are of the same bag I paid Lopez."

"You mean every gold piece was marked?"

"No. Not marked. I grant, of course, there are other twenty-dollar gold pieces in the world, but see, these are new—as were the ones I had from the bank. And what would this dog be doing with two pieces of gold? I think, major, you have caught one of El Coyote's band."

"Perhaps El Coyote himself," suggested Don Bob, smiling.

"Hardly that." The Spaniard looked menacingly down at the captive. "If one could only make this swine speak. At my hacienda he would of a sureness speak."

Dr. Price had finished his bandaging. "The wound doesn't look bad. Bullet's touched the bone and the whole thing's inflamed. Don't move him any more tonight. He's had enough. Can you keep him here?"

"He'd be safer in the guardhouse."

"Hell, a man with a leg like that isn't going to break any long distance records. Can't you lock him here and put twenty or thirty non-coms over him?"

Blount smiled at his friend's impatience. "All right. I'll have the guard keep an eye on him. We may want a long talk with this fellow tomorrow before I start after El Coyote. Well, let's go back to the house."

Inside, Major Blount confined his tale to the bare fact that the Mexican had been wounded in the leg by someone unknown.

"Probably the girl's husband," suggested Aunt Clara hopefully, and there the matter rested. But it was too late to resume bridge, and so a few minutes later Radcliffe found himself laying Adela's cloak about her shoulders.

"I'm wondering," he said without a smile, "if tomorrow I'll wake up and discover you never existed."

She looked up at him, so close he caught again the fragrance of her hair, and her eyes were a little mocking. "Perhaps the me you have created never did exist. At any rate, dear stranger, come to us next fiesta. And now, as we say in my country, 'Hasta la vista.' She touched his hand in a little gesture of farewell, and followed her uncle out into the night.

As he stood looking after her, Don Bob joined him. "We've a lot to talk about before you go to bed tonight. Let's be going."

To Radcliffe the voice of the older man sounded suddenly weary, and in a few moments they had taken leave of the Blounts.

Radcliffe settled back as Don Bob drove rapidly over the long, moonlit road past Verdi. From unseen gardens floated the scent of jasmine and the pungent odor of mesquite, and as they left the town behind them he breathed again the hot, dry desert air. Dimly he caught the silver outlines of far-off hills, marking the vague, mysterious land of old Mexico.

He wanted to talk, but the graying man beside him seemed so sternly silent, and somehow forbidding. He leaned forward to light a cigarette and was aware that the other's eyes were on him.

"What were you thinking, Ted?" the older man asked.

"Just then I was thinking of the freedom of life out here and the friendliness of everyone, and I recalled something that once said—that if you trust life—trust it absolutely and with utter faith—it never lets you down. He was right, wasn't he?"

For a time there was no reply. Only the whir of the wheels on the smooth road. Then, as if from very far away came the quiet voice of Don Bob.

"I'd give my right arm, Ted, if I could say yes to that. But, instead, I'm going to tell you something tonight that will make you lose that trust in the kindness of this world. It's a message that is going to strip you of everything you've ever had. Even," he added sorrowfully, "even your memories."

Before Radcliffe could answer Don Bob had stopped before the ranchhouse and hurried him up the steps.

Now hundreds of miles are traversed on the South American waters in this manner, Mr. Pent sometimes preaching the Gospel where white-man has never before trod. Not only the souls of the natives are ministered to, but their minds and bodies. Mrs. Pent has been enabled to assist those she has come in contact with in many ways, giving medical aid at times. Their converts are many.

After several years of work in South America, the Pent family, in need of rest, desired to come to their home section. As always, their needs were taken up in prayer. Soon the necessary travelling expenses were at hand, and when they reached Siles, where Mrs. Pent had previously resided, a home was furnished for the winter, rent free. Coal was placed in the cellar by kind friends, and staple articles of food supplied for months to come. A few months ago they removed to South Langhorne.

"Why, God is even my alarm clock," Mr. Pent has often said. "When out on treks in our mission field I have to arise early at times, in order to fill engagements. Not having an alarm clock with me, I depend on the Lord to awaken me. That is a real test of faith. But He has never failed. I awake in time to do the tasks of the day."

Mr. Pent has recently completed copy for three booklets, which tell of the work he and his wife are carrying on through prayer and faith. This work is likewise done in faith, it being necessary to secure orders for 1,000 copies of each of the booklets in order to have them published. They have faith the demand will be supplied, and their message of the work of the Gospel thus spread further.

Always at Your Service

One thing we have said before bears frequent repeating—our buses and trolleys are always ready to take you wherever you wish to go.

That is important, for that signifies reliable, dependable transportation.

Your own car may be out of condition — a tire may be flat, the radiator may leak, the battery may be run down, you may be out of gas — any number of things may make it inadvisable to get out your own car, but the Coach Company's buses are on the job. They are clean, safe, comfortable and operated on schedule.

And just at this time, even more important is the fact that bus and trolley service are ECONOMICAL.

For a fraction of what it costs you to drive your own car, our buses and trolleys take you and your family wherever you may wish to go up and down Bristol Pike, at convenient hours.

Be wise!

Leave your own car in the garage this winter, and use the buses and trolleys.

AQUINAS TEAMS MARK UP VICTORIES

Aquinas first team went on a scoring spree in their hall, at Croydon, and defeated the Fawley A. C. basketball team by the score of 56 to 25. However, the Fawley offered stubborn resistance in the first half and at half-time they were leading by the score of 11 to 10, but in the second half the Aquinas five started to function and once started there was no stopping. Lake starred from field with 12 field goals and Gleason took second honors with six field goals. However, the fast passing and team work made the big score possible. McShay did the best work for the losers by scoring 15 of the 25 points.

The second team also conquered Fawley's second team by the score of 27 to 15. Dougherty and Morgan did the best work for Aquinas and English for Fawley.

Chunk. Much of her life had been spent in Bristol, having come to this borough when a child. For a period of 15 years after her marriage she made her home in Trenton, N. J., but since her removal from Trenton resided in Bristol.

The late Mrs. Doran is survived by one son, Thomas L. Doran; three sisters, Mrs. John Gavegan, Misses Honor and Margaret Barrett; and a brother, P. J. Barrett, of Bristol.

Funeral on Tuesday will be held from the Doran home, with high requiem mass in St. Mark's Church at 10 a. m. Burial is to be made in St. Mark's Cemetery.

In her 79th year, Miss Bessie Jackson, daughter of the late Jesse and Rebecca Jackson, died at the home of her nieces, the Misses Jennie and Florence Chambers, 223 Wood street, last evening at 7.30, following an illness of 15 months.

The deceased is survived by one sister, Mrs. Monroe McKinney, Bustleton; two nieces and two nephews.

The late Miss Jackson was a member of St. James's P. E. Church and an active worker in the Mothers' Guild of that congregation. Half a century had been passed by her in Bristol.

The funeral on Thursday at three

p. m., will be held at the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street, with burial in All Saints Graveyard, Torresdale. Friends may call Wednesday evening.

NEWPORTVILLE, Jan. 25.—James Lewis Lee, owner of the Quaker City Belting Company, Newportville, who was also engaged in the farm implement business, died at his home here, yesterday morning.

Survivors include his wife, Jane Lee (nee Broadbent); three daughters and one son: Mrs. William Grimwood, Newportville; Mrs. Walter Reiss, Philadelphia; Mrs. J. D. Lovejoy, Lansdowne; and Harry Lee, Nutley, N. J.

The late Mr. Lee had made his home here for seven years. For the past year he had suffered ill health.

Organizations with which he was affiliated included: Michael Arnold Lodge, 636, F. and A. M., and Loyal Faith Lodge, 6715, I. O. O. F., of Philadelphia. He was likewise a trustee of Newportville Church. For 16 years Mr. Lee had been connected with the J. E. Rhoades and Son Company, Philadelphia.

Members of organizations with which he was connected, and relatives and friends, are invited to the funeral at Newportville Church, Wednesday, at 1.30 p. m. Interment will be made in Leverington Cemetery, Roxborough. Friends may call Tuesday evening.

WASHINGTON—With Spartan fortitude, John Malone, 10, walked 18 miles to a hospital here from his Marianna home, after he suffered a fractured arm while playing.

Without funds, his mother accompanied him on the journey. Transportation home was arranged for the pair after the boy was treated at Washington Hospital.

SLIGHT FIRE

There was a slight fire this morning at 2008 Trenton avenue. A partition back of a gas stove in a shed caught fire.

DON'T SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE, GAS HURTS HEART

If stomach gas makes you restless and unable to sleep on right side, take Adierika. One dose will rid you of gas or nervousness, and bring sound sleep. Hoffman's Cut Rate Store.—(Adv.)

NAT SHILKRET and his 35-piece orchestra

For this Chesterfield Program, Mr. Shilkret has assembled and will personally conduct an orchestra of exceptional range and color. Mr. Shilkret's musical background is impressive—with the Russian Symphony Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic, and as organizer and director of the Victor Salon Orchestra, where his arrangements and recordings of lighter music proved immensely popular.

COAST-TO-COAST OVER THE COLUMBIA NETWORK

Six nights a week; 10:30—10:45 (Eastern Standard Time.) The rich baritone of Alex Gray, romantic star of stage and screen... a large and splendidly-balanced orchestra of first rank, drawing from all that is tuneful in today's music. This is one of radio's "high spots."

ALEX GRAY, popular soloist

"How he can sing!" is the universal comment. A rising star of musical comedy stage and screen, and with rare gifts of personality and voice, Mr. Gray's stirring baritone is ideal for radio and for the romantic and colorful ballads which he sings so well. An addition to radio's first-line artists, and an important figure in "Music that Satisfies."
